These members of our National Committee, with sixteen hundred and thirty-five men and women, lost their lives on Monday, April 15th, 1912, when the steamship "Titanic" collided with an iceberg and sank to the bottom of the North Atlantic.

Let him that would find the epitaph of these men who thus lost their lives, read it in the women and children who survived and for whom they sacrificed themselves like brave, God-fearing and honorable men.

Foreword

THE National Committee for the Celebration of the One Hundredth Anniversary of Peace among English-Speaking Peoples was organized in February, 1910, to bring about a proper and an adequate celebration of the approaching centenary anniversary of the ratification of the Ghent Treaty. The movement had and has no other purpose than that which appears in its title.

The celebration movement derives its impetus and inspiration from the fact that, despite the large number of disputed questions which have been outstanding between America and Great Britain during the past century, all differences have been settled one by one by means of diplomacy or arbitration. This achievement is all the more striking when there is taken into consideration the unfortified frontier of 3,840 miles which separates Canada and the United States.

It is natural, therefore, that there should have grown up a desire in America and the British Empire to celebrate this century of peace between two kindred peoples that, though they have twice engaged in armed conflict, have for so long a time acted, in their international relationship on the basis of an arbitral settlement of all disputes.

But a century of peace between France and all English-speaking countries will be completed in 1915, and for one hundred and fifty years there has been no armed conflict between England and Germany and never as between America and Germany. It is, as was announced from the beginning, the purpose of the Committee, when international organization shall have been advanced, to invite not only France and Germany, but Holland, Sweden, Norway, Italy, Austro-Hungary and the other nations of the world to be our guests in the celebration.

It should be said once and for all that any statement to the effect that the Committee is engaged in any purpose other than that which appears in this pamphlet is an absolute and unqualified misstatement of facts. Equally untrue is any assertion that the Committee represents any person or organization other than itself and its own members.

The influence of the Committee will be exerted towards securing the highest artistic character possible for any monuments which may be erected commemorating the centennial. It is desired that all American memorials should, in sentiment and purpose, be less a commemoration of the past than a covenant of a continuation for the future of present amity and good will.

The Committee will assume no governmental or diplomatic functions, but will leave the approach of the governments, one to the other, for purposes of the celebration, to be made by such official representatives as each may hereafter appoint. Such delegations from the Committee as may visit other countries will go with the sole object of conveying information concerning the organization and purposes of the Committee, and of inspiring in the countries which may be visited organization and activity for like purposes.

The celebration of this anniversary probably offers the best opportunity our generation will see for the cultivation of world-wide goodwill.

The headquarters of the National Committee are at 50 Church Street, New York City.

Plan and Purpose of Movement to Celebrate the One Hundredth Anniversary of Peace Among English
Speaking Peoples

1814-'15—1914-'15

(From Address of Mr. Andrew B. Humphrey)
(Mohonk Conference, May, 1911, Revised)

IT is significant that the signing of the Treaty of Ghent on Christmas Eve, 1814, was not brought about by the Commissioners assigned to that duty, for after they had been in conference for nearly six months the two Nations themselves, forced by a strong public sentiment among the peoples of both countries that demanded peace, directed the Commissioners to conclude a peace pact regardless of the prior claim set forth by the Commissioners and their respective governments. Thus the Ghent treaty was concluded without reference to the issues which brought on the war. The treaty was forced by public sentiment and is a monument to that greater force than war, irresistible national public opinion.

This same force of popular opinion has maintained peace for a century regardless of treaties and despite the failure of treaties, and has brought about the elimination of substantially all the serious causes of irritation between the two countries.

The idea of celebrating one hundred years of peace seems to have occurred spontaneously to many people, and without co-operation. It was first discussed during the administration of former President Roosevelt, and it is probably true that through President Roosevelt, Andrew Carnegie, former Minister MacKenzie King, of Canada, Mr. John A. Stewart, of New York, and the support of the Mohonk Conference, the project of a celebration took organized and definite form. Minister King in an address at the Harvard Commencement of 1909 and again at Lake Mohonk in 1910, urged a celebration of the event.

In February, 1910, Mr. Stewart called a meeting in New York City of representatives of various business, religious and professional organizations, at which a preliminary committee was organized. This committee in turn called a general meeting, at which there was organized The National Committee for the Celebration of the One Hundredth Anniversary of Peace Among English-Speaking Peoples.

By invitation a committee of fifteen held a conference with President Taft at Beverly, July 15, 1910. There the movement was discussed with the President, who heartily approved the idea of the celebration and promised all the support he could personally and officially give.

The Committee then invited former President Roosevelt to take the Honorary Chairmanship and Mr. Andrew Carnegie to become Chairman. Their acceptances, as well as those of former Vice-President Fairbanks of the position of Honorary Chairman of the Executive Committee, and of former Vice-Presidents Levi P. Morton and Adlai E. Stevenson, Senator Elihu Root, Mr. William Jennings Bryan, Mr. Alton B. Parker, and former Ambassador Joseph H. Choate of positions as Honorary Vice-Chairmen, signaled the launching of the movement, and of the perfecting of a permanent organization.

The membership of the National Committee is rapidly approaching five thousand. No limit as to number of members has been fixed.

Since the essential work of organization was completed and a full corps of officers elected, the Committee has been at work in the development of a definite program, which will be submitted to the International body as soon as the International Committee shall have been organized as the result of an international conference to be held either in New York City or in London sometime during the coming year.

As to the scope of the celebration, it may be said that there is every promise and expectation that all the leading nations of the world will, in some appropriate manner, and through their own initiative, take such action as will indicate their interest in and approval of the event.

There are several reasons why the Committee was so thoroughly organized far in advance of the date of the celebration. One was to bring about an amalgamation of all the various movements which have been initiated to celebrate the Peace Centenary, and also to bring about cooperation in plan, and purpose, and agreement as to activities; to create a body that could act in an advisory as well as in a supervisory capacity; and in order to anticipate the legislative approval of states, where immediate action was necessary efficiently to devise a comprehensive plan for 1914-15; and more especially if we are to dedicate completed memorials.

SUGGESTIONS AS TO CELEBRATION

Suggestions have come from various parts of the English-speaking world—

1. That a preliminary international Conference convene in New York or London during the coming year, with representatives from each English-speaking nation, or colony. This meeting will be a forward movement towards international good will and the maintenance and perpetuation of world-wide friendly relations.

2. That the hundredth anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Ghent (Dec. 24, 1814) be celebrated with suitable ceremony in Ghent and also in the churches, schools, societies, organizations, clubs, legislative bodies and Parliaments throughout the English-speaking world.

3. That a ceremonial banquet be given in Ghent on the evening of January 8, 1915, in replica of the banquet given by the municipality of Ghent to the Joint High Commission on January 8, 1815, and that responses be made to the same toasts that were the subjects of the addresses on that occasion.

4. That (the suggestion coming from United States Senator Elihu Root), the celebration formally begin on the 17th of February, the date of the ratification of the Ghent Treaty, and in this solemn and impressive way:

For a given five minutes of a given hour, the proper time to be computed by a board of astronomers, throughout the English-speaking world, so far as practicable all the wheels of industry and social and business activity shall cease.

5. That American-English peace monuments be erected along the United States-Canadian border and in Ottawa, Baltimore, Toronto, Chicago, Savannah, San Francisco and such other locations in the English-speaking world as may be selected and approved by the cities and peoples interested.

6. That these monuments be harmonious and artistic in design with reference to the central idea commemorated, and that the dedication of these monuments be utilized for educational purposes, by memorial exercises in churches, schools, societies, fraternal organizations, etc.

7. That advantage be taken of the occasion to spread broadcast, through special publications, the inspiring benefits of a century of peace.

8. That a memorial history be written under the joint authorship of a representative Englishman and a representative American, with monographs, by experts, on special phases of the subject.

9. That a new type of exhibition might be inaugurated in connection with the Panama Canal celebration at San Francisco, in 1915, showing the progress of the arts of peace during the century.

10. That there be a great merchant marine parade from Buffalo to Duluth and return, with celebrations in the border cities and towns.

11. That through international co-operation a plan of boulevard, park and parkway creation and extension be formulated, to include the erection at such focal points as the Niagara Frontier, the Detroit Frontier, and in other places, of great permanent monuments and memorials, such as water gates on either side of the Detroit River; the building of a tunnel from Windsor to Detroit as part of an international boulevard extension; the building of a bridge from Belle Isle, Detroit, to the mainland; the erection of bridges as a part of the plan of boulevard extension now being carried out by the State of New York and the Province of Ontario at the Niagara Frontier; the erection of border monuments at intervals along the American-Canadian frontier of three thousand eight hundred and forty miles, etc., etc.

12. That a World Statue of Peace be erected in New York Harbor on a new artificial island southwest of Governor's Island, and facing the Statue of Liberty, so that both "Liberty and Fraternity" may welcome the nations and peoples "at the cross roads" of the world's peaceful intercourse, and, that the twenty million school children in the United States be the builders of this mute but eloquent appeal of humanity to humanity!

13. That a museum of the industrial arts be erected in New York City, to be dedicated to the uses of the people as a place of public meeting, and for the promotion of the peaceful arts and sciences and friendly international intercourses.

14. That there be erected in Washington, the capital of the United States, and in London, the capital of the British Empire, two monuments, identical in design and legend.

15. That effort be made to co-ordinate and correlate some of the highways now under construction in the United States and Canada and to cause the enactment by the Congress of the United States, the Parliament of the Dominion, and the legislatures of the States and Provinces, of laws which will permit a suitable and impressive titular designation of such highway or highways, so that they may form an international boulevard connecting focal points in the United States with focal points in Canada; as, for example, the boulevard now building by the State of New York between New York City and the frontier at Moore's Junction, and by the Province of Quebec between Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Windsor and the Canadian frontiers at Moore's Junction and at the Niagara and Detroit river frontiers.

16. That there be completed the ninety miles of boulevards now in course of construction on the shores of the Niagara River from lake to lake by the State of New York and the Province of Ontario, and that these boulevards be connected by appropriate memorial bridges between Buffalo and Fort Erie, between Niagara Falls, New York, and Niagara Falls, Canada, and between Youngstown, New York, and Niagara-on-the-Lake, Canada.

17. That ample provision be made for future needs of international parks along the Canadian frontier in New England, as for example the establishment of a park of the Fort Montgomery reservation on Lake Champlain, at the Thousand Islands, Niagara Falls and the Niagara frontier, Detroit, Sault Ste Marie, and Westward to Vancouver Island.

18. That a comprehensive plan be prepared by an international and by local committees of engineers, architects, sculptors and landscape artists of renown, outlining a definite scheme for the present and anticipating the future, as a beginning of an era of artistic development and embellishment of the Canadian frontier, and such other points as may consistently be associated with this centennial project and which shall harmonize with the general plan to provide the foundation for centuries of development as an expression of progressive civilization.

19. That the celebration conclude with International Congresses, opening in New York and ending at the Panama Exposition in San Francisco in 1915, concentrating the peace sentiment of the world upon the specific accomplishments desired through the Third Hague Peace Conference, which will probably be in session at that time, and with general reference to the peace, prosperity and welfare of the peoples of the world.

20. That there be suitable pageantry celebrations in connection with the International local celebrations.

21. That there be a general day of thanksgiving in celebration at the capitals of all of the American states, and of the Provinces of Canada and other component parts of the nations of the British Empire.

22. That a monument be erected on the battlefield of New Orleans, on the site of the house where General Packingham died, in memory of the dead of the British and American armies, and dedicated to the hope and belief that it is erected on the site of the last battle between armies of English-speaking origin.

23. That there be issues of memorial postage, coinage and medals.

24. That a memorial arch be built to span the international New York to Montreal Highway at the American-Canadian frontier.

Finally, it should be kept in mind that, while war celebrations have been spectacular in history, this celebration will emphasize the victories of peace through the spiritual, intellectual, industrial, political and economic triumphs of a marvelous century of development and progress.

This celebration is a people's movement; its purpose is popular, its aims, to benefit humanity. Underlying it is the motive to establish a wider personal acquaintance among English-speaking peoples and the peoples of the whole world, to afford the better opportunity to gain one another's point of view, in order that all of us may the more easily avoid those little offences which, aggravated by prejudice, grow into serious international misunderstanding.
